faces new Court Line questions

By Maurice Corina Industrial Editor

The Government faces more questions over its bandling of the Court Line rescue operation. They ceoure on a denial by both Mr Wedgwood Benn, Secretary of State for Iodustry, and Mr Shore, Secretary of State for Trade, that they misled holiday-makers when announcing the nationalization of Court Shipbuilders builders.

Opposition interest is mounting over the unanswered onesing over the unanswered onestion why the Government did not disclose to the Commons on July 1, when the terms for nationalization were anounced, that it was a condition of the ourchase of the ship; and that independent accountants should be called in to examine the books.

Mr Benn did oot on that day state, as he does now, that the Government "insisted on an indenendent lovestigation into the finances of Court Line". At his areas conference on Friday, Mr Shore repeated several times that Peat Marwick and Mitchell, the City accomments, had been called in and began work on July 1, with the consequential findings disclosing the true state of affairs as the inquiry progressed. What is puzzliog MPs is that the Government was given a clear opportunity on July 1 to qualify Mr Benn's financial arrangements by making clear that they were subject to iodependent scrutiny from outside accountants. The opportunity was not taken.

Replying to a Commons question, Mr Meaches, Parliameotary Secretary of State, Department of Industry, said Mr Beno had no intention of apointing an outside interest m advise on

A Provisional IRA threat to the lives of power workers in the Newry area yesterday blacked out the horder town in co Down Mr Rees, Secretary of State for Northern Iteland, will today meet electricity officials, trade unionists and officers at Stormoot Castle to discuss the crisis.

More than two thousand factory workers are idle, three hospitals are using emergency generators, and shops and private houses have no power. The situation resembles, on a small scale, that which existed during the Ulster Workers' Council strike last May.

The crisis threatening Newry, a town whose economy bas steadily declined over the past five years, has been caused by the IRA's demand that the Army should no longer control street lighting. The military authorities insist that some lights should he turned out to protect soldiera from sniper fire, but the Provisionals have said that unless the streets are

The Ulster Volunteer Force, the Protestant private army which was illegal until Mr Rees, Secretary of State for Northern Ireand, lifted the ban on it earlier this year, may be the only "loyalist" group to offer a candidate in the Bel fast, West, constituency in the next general election.

A fierce argument has broken out between the UVF and its main paramilitary rivals in the Ulster Defence Association. When Mr John McQuade anoouoced last week that he would not stand for the Unionists in the next election many of bis political sup-porters in Belfast, West, be-lieved that he had received threats from a Protestant group.

The sitting MP, Mr Gerard Fitt, leader of the Social Democratic and Labour Party, is the only Roman Catholic MP representing Ulster at West-minister and be may lose his seat in the autumn.

Muslim is Indian President

From Michael Hornsby Delhi, Aug 20

Mr Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed was today elected the fifth President of the Indian Republic by an overwhelming majority, becoming only the second Muslim to hold that high office. He will be sworn in on Saturday in Rashtrapati Bhavan, the former vice-regal, and now the presidential, resi-

Mr Ahmed, who was the no-minee of the ruling Congress Party, won just over 80 per cent of the 954,783 valid votes cast, easily defeating his single opposent, Mr Tridib Chaud-huri, who was sponsored by eight opposition parties. There was never any doubt about Mr Ahmed's victory, giveo the dominating position of the Congress Party in the central Parliament and most state assemblies. It is evident from the result, however, that the new President also re-ceived the vores of some opposition party members.

The President was chosen by an electoral college composed of all central and state legislature members with voting weighted so as to give state legislators power equal to that of the central members and proportional to the population

Elected for a term of five years, the President may he removed only hy impeachment. On paper he eojoys formidable executive, legislative and emer-gency powers hnt, in practice, presidents have always deferred so far to prime minis-terial advice.

Mr Ahmed, a colourless and faithful supporter of the Nehrus, father and daughter, is not likely to challenge that ira-dition. Abroad, he seems destioed to cut an even less impressive figure than his undistinguisbed predecessor, Varahaciri Venkata Giri.

As a Muslim, Mr Ahmed has heen subject to some predictahly malevolent sniping from Hindu militants. He has, however, also been accused more seriously of making dishonest declarations of his land holdings so as to evade the legal ceiling on land owners-ship. So far there has been no satisfactory answer to these allegations.

Where a ball sits up asking to be hit

Golf Correspondent Gleneagies held a stroke play cortain-raiser yesterday for the team match play golf tournament that will take over the stage for the last three days of the week. Understandably in a short sprint over 36 holes, played on one of Britzin's more delightful holiday courses, the lead after 18 holes is stared between six of varying nationalities, and there are a dozen or so one stroke behind these. Afflied Breweries, who sponsor this Double Diamond tournament, now in its fourth year, have added this medal tithit by way of 2 gesture to the PGA and to their members who fail to find e place in the main event. The match play compedtors are also taking part.

Billy Caster is here to captain the last three days of the week.

ped tors are also taking part.

Billy Casper is here to captain the Rest of the World team, and also from the United States has come Doug Sanders, both of them finding the chill climate a marked change from the bunid 80s of the United States PGA championstrip. Casper improved the par of 71 by two strokes, his five birdles being offset by three strokes dropped round or on the greens. Three of the birdles came by reaching the green in 2 stroke less than par. The wind helped coming in and everyone was expecting to be on the green from the tee at the 266 yd fourteenth, although where the ball finished was mainly a question iour from second. He has had a lean year so far, but in the last First round tournament before leaving the 60 P. E. Borri United States he finished in a tie Gallacher was for fifth place.

The heather bound course, with The heather-bound course, with its plunging fairways and blind shots, rakes a good deal of knowing, and is unfamiliar to most of the 100 competitors based largely on the order of merit, but Gallacher plays here a good deal during the winter and respect the benefit. He drove especially well missing only one fairway, and he was not afraid to take his driver again on the springy fairways, where the big half sits up and asks to be lift. He was in four bunkers, but got down in two from three of them.

Oosterhuis, who is to captain the England team tomorrow, set a good example by joining the leaders on 59, disappointed only that be had not taken the lead because he finished with two fives. His partuer, Donald Swaelens, went out in 32, the lowest of the day, as though to prove that he and not Philippe Toussaint, the winner of last week's tournament, was No I in Belginm, but he faded just when Oosterhuis began to score.

David Robertson, the 17-year-old Dumbar golfer and holder of the title, suffered an unexpected defeat in the third round of the Boys' champlouship, at Royal Liverpool, yesterday. Robertson, who has already won both the Scottish boys' and Baritah youths' titles this season. Went out by two boles against Kevin Weeks, the 16-year-old Hampshire boy champion, playing in the championship for the first time.

Another casualty was Paul Downes, the 14-year-old from Coventry who reached the quarterifinal of the Bnglish amateur championship last month.

Weeks, standing 6ft Sin tail and weighing 15 stones, hardly appeared likely to upset the form when, in a nervous start, be keet the first four holes to Robertson. The Scot, far from bappy with the wrist be damaged on Monday, wasted two boles of his lead by the turn.

Russell fights back to win after delayed start

By John Nicholls

Two races were beld yesterday in the Fireball class national championship, organized by the Liandudno Sailing Club and sponsored by Dunhills. The first, which was won by Leonard Russell crewed by his wife. Vera, of the Blithfield Sailing Club, was the race scheduled for yesterday and the second, sailed in the evening, made up for the race postponed from Monday.

The weather again bindered proceedings and the first race was postponed from 11 o'clock to three o'clock when the wind died and changed direction. Eventually it settled from the south, as foreast, and the 175 entries were able to race. It was still ight and variable, bowever, in both strength ond direction and places changed frequently throughout the race.

The first, and probably the most critical, shift occurred soon after the start, when the pathfinder boat was still opening the starting gate. Boats that started carly had a marked advantage, and those that waited for a few minutes were elevady the tall-enders.

Russell was among the early starters and was soon prominent at the bead of the fleet. Nearing the windward mark, though, the wind lapsed temporarily and be was left in a void while other boats crept past. He rounded the mark seventh, one of a small, rightly packed group that stayed close together for the rest of the race.

Ridden, as she at Ascot in July, by ggott, Dablia pulled her Maurice Zilber, and to his staff, in contrast, Highelere looked much lighter than she had done at Ascot, and her race lacked sparkle. Imperial Prince and Snow Knight both ran well, but they had no answer when Dablia winged her way past. She was simply in a class of her own, a class shared arguably by the other great French filly, Allez France.

But will they meet at Loopchamp

But will they meet at Longchamp on Detober 6 in the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe? That is something that is still to be decided. We know that the connexions of Allez France have the Arc upper-most in their minds. Dublio's

However, Mr Zilber says he would be worried if the going at Longchamp on Arc day became heavy. Whatever happens there is now a distinct possibility that Dahlia will stay in training as a five-year-nid in 1975. Her in victories during the last three seasons have now amassed £396,660. It is a sign of the Dime of the season when Hill's and Ladhroke's open an ante-post book on the Arc. In the belief that Dahlia will run Hill's are laying 7-4 Allez France, 2-1 Dahlia and 6-1 Dibidale, Ladbroke's are rather more cautious, offering 5-2 Dahlia with the guaractee of o run. Aller France is Diludale duly won the Yorkshire Oaks yesterday but not before she had given her connexions a fright.

Actually it was Mil's Bumb, rinden with shrewd tacrical judgment by Geoffrey Lewis, who almost caucad a furore. Opposed by only Mil's Bomb and Sea Singer, Dibidale was forced to dictate the gallop. The pace was show initially and when Lewis and Mil's Bomb poutced two Jurhougs from home, Carson he is every bit as good as ever, to judge from his recent victory in the Timeform Gold Cup at Redcar.

However, 10-1 1 lb might be on anchor to him in the last furlong, in a race which is always run at a tremendous gallop from start to finish. Edward Hide and Petry Officer have struck up o warm and profitable friendship in the past time seasons, and with the anx drying out the ground and the possibility of fastish going. Petry Officer will have the conditions he likes.

Last month, Petry Officer beat Dakon by two lengths and o half at Redcar, and now Dakota is 4 lb better bandcapped with the old horse. This is a fair advantage over a mile and three quarters, and I think Dakota has been given an excellent chance to reverse the Redcar placings.

Dakota, who won three races in succession including Royal Ascot's King George V Stakes under 8 st 1 lb in record dime for the mile and a half, is the same sort of improving, staying three-year-old as Alignment. He was left with a great deal of ground to make up in the Straight in the Timeform Guld Cup, and there was the im-

There is no need to say that chances in this race can be given to at least 12 of the 18 runners. Every Ebor is like this, and many think that it is the most open and difficult long distance handicap of the season. To taking Dakota to give Sam Hall his second victory. I suggest Petty Officer, Firefright, Onward Taroo and Girandole as the dangers. Nor can King Frog. the winner of his last two races and well handicapped with 8 st 8 lb, be left out.

Firefright is a strange borse. On his day he is a good long-distance handicapper, 2nd 12 months ago he came from out of the pack to he beateo two heads in the Ebor. Bonne Noel won that race, and his trainer. Paddy Prendergast thinks that be may bring it off again with Onward Taroo, successful in his last three races, two of them for women.

Onward Taroo and Girandole have been heavily backed recently, and certainly Girandole who won the one mile five furlong Morland Brewery Handicap at Newbury in good style, looks on an attractive mark with 7 st 5 lb. He and Petty Officer are the two horses who may finish second and third behind Dakota, and for the best long shot I suggest Firefright, who might cut them all down in the final furlong if he is in the right mood.

Things have not worked out quite like that. Orfeo remains his most popular opera, Iphigénie en Tauride his most esteemed; and Sep. Deris, Sall SEATS SREEE, ACC. ABC. 1 S. P.Y.C. 1A1 WK & SEE. 2.00

ABC. 2: 8.30. 18.20. individual merits are found in various other of the so-called reform operas. Alceste is more often discussed than performed. In its final form it may be seen as his archetypal reform opera, the ooe following most closely the principles which he and Calrabigi eouociated in the famoos preface.

Thare are weaknesses to the opera as far as modern taste is coocerned. It is very static, and its emotional palette is near monochrome: the opera is occu-pied almost exclusively with the anticipation of death (first that of Admetus, than that of Alcestis). And the plot's ceotral situation is so strong as to be beyond plausible solution. In the Italian original of 1767 Apollo bis wife. For the 1776 Freoch version Gluck and du Roullet planned a more elaborate scane with Apollo, but the plan re-mains unrealized: and wheo his first version of Act III was ill-received in Paris be returned to the Euripides original and introduced Hercules, to enter Hades and wrest back Alcestis. The Italian setting is nowadays not available in priot (the Freoch version appeared in the complete edition 17 years ago) and the compromised final text is the only one to be bad. For compromised it is: Hercules's intervention is extraneous to the central theme, the goodness and love of Admetus and Alcestis which (like that of Orpheus and Euridice) prove powerful ecough to win over the gods.

This was the text used by Scottish Opera for their oew production, which opened the Edinburgh Festival's operatic doings oo Monday. It is their first Gluck production, and a choice to be applauded on account of the rarity, the beauty, and the quintessectial quality of the work. On the musical place it was, to the main, impressively realized: for although the Scottish National Orchestra were again not in their very best form Alexander Gibsoo drew some fine playing from them, sometimes serece, sometimes inteosely expres-sive; and in general he paced this difficult score carefully and sensitively.

I sm less bappy about the production style. John Stoddart's sets place the action oot in the classical surrouodiogs ant to the beyday of the Franco-German classical revival but lo s roman-

True, the music is exotic, particularly wheo takeo too quickly; but such Dionysiac doings are scarcely seemly io the worship of Apollo. The principals' actioos, too, often lack clear monvation and the "beautiful simplicity" which Gluck's music demands. Peter Darrell's choreography, with its elaborate mime, surely introduces precisely the kind of distraction which Gluck was at pains to avoid. In many ways the production seemed off-key

While ber mother had coosiderable psychic powers, of which her daughter writes, she berself has only a little. "I can be very aware of people who have died, but I cannot trust my intuition. I read in the biography of Lord Horder by his son that when he didn't know what was the matter with a patient be used to sit beside them and hold their hend until be did know."

There bave, of course, been books not related to her own life. The farthest away was, perhaps, The Child from the Sca, the story of Lucy Walter, who was the mother of Charles Il's son, James, Duke of Monmouth. "I didn't draw this from my own life at all, and I think it was almost the first book that wasn't influenced by the homes I have had. I paid two short visits to Pembrokeshire, where Jessie has a cottage on the coast, and I had the most levely beliday there. I went to St Davids. lovely boliday there. Even if Elizabeth Goudge bas not lived an adventurous life, she has inhabited those other worlds created by the writer's art. "You can have a story in your brain heating to come out-or a certain charac-ter for whom you feel quite deeply. Your characters take over absolutely. I plan it out for them at the beginning, but they won't keep to it. I become obsessed with some character who comes into my miod— I didn't mean to write a book about this bouse, hut I believe that a woman came in through the gate at the end of this path and that I saw her walk past, and she was Fronega, the heroine of The White Witch. Whether I saw a ghost or whether I imagined the whole thing I don't koow. The first year we were here the gypsies were camping on the field. I had never met any real gypsics hefine, and 20 years ago they had the painted caravaos and the camp fires and they used to sing round them. There was ao amazing old grand-mother and I would look up and see this marvellous old face smiliog at me through the kitchen window while I was doing the washing up—she went into my book just as she was."

The garden has been made over the past 20 years by Jessie Mouroe. It is full of trees and berbs, Miss Jessop's rosemary, pineapple mint (which smells of eau de cologne) and the blue rue, which is the herb of grace. Jessie Monroe came to stay with Miss Goudge to help her through the time after her mother died. "I felt terribly alone—but it didn't last for more than a few months, because Jessie came "-a tem-porary arrangement which has lasted for more than 20 years.

Jessie has the warmth and generous entbusiasm so often found in those born with red hair, and the bousehold is com pleted by Froda, latest in a line of much loved dogs. In Miss Goudge's books the dogs are always characters in their own right, and Froda, a three-year-old honey yellow Dandy Dinmont, is no exception Dandy Dinmonts, originally Scottish badger hounds, are tough little diggers with steel jaws. An earlier dog once killed a passing stray Cat, much to everyone's horror. She is a charming and amazingly heavy little creature, apparently either filled with concrete, or else rooted to the ground by four short legs.

The things that Elizabeth Goudge was taught at school bave served her all her life. Her religious faith is an abiding ooe, though she has found it hard, and writes movingly of her struggle to reconcile her views on pain and suffering with the love of Gnd. "I think how tremendously lucky I was to grow up with the people with whom I did—the greatest thing you can possibly be given is a father and mother the people with the people with the people with whom I did—the greatest thing you can possibly be given is a father and mother the people with the peop

The Japanese anemones are flowering. and autumn, a favourite season, has come into the garden, and the grapes are ripening on the vine against the wall of the cottage which is Elizaheth Goudge's bappy

The " childish " qualities are obvious: not just the dominance of Fritz Wegner's pictorial designs, which sometimes command more space than the verse, but also Mr Serraillier's liking for the poetic treatment of nursery literature. skilfu) way of suggesting that peetry is more approachable than the schoolroom more approachable than the schoolroom allnws—a technique even more evident in Michael Roseo's Mind Your Own Business (Deutsch, £1.25) whose contents range from Old Ben Brown "who played the uketele with his trousers down", through the farcical saga of "My brother got married in a wimpy bar", to a group of poems where the artist's perception is intensified by the cheerful informality of his verse.

his verse. Mr Rosen is happy to write whole poems as conversation pieces and be has a nice ear for the way kids speak (peas for breakfast please he said and n plateful of neas is what he got), his minhibited enjoyment of the whole operation standing in sharp con trast to the well-meaning but rather stiff jointed attempts of more famous poets to write "with young people in mind" (a phrase with more than a hint of condescension). These are the Chatto Poets for the Young, edited by Leonard Clark, a series in which four new contributors have just appeared (75p each). John Fuller's Squeak ing Crust comes nearest to catching the energy of popular verse and his boom sequence for music "Fox-trnt" prohebly comes over well in performance, but like two other volumes (D. J. Enright's Rhyme Times Rhyme and Phoebe Hesketh's A Song of Sunlight) the humour is often quirky rather than broad, and there are subtleties of allusion and phrasing which demand the response of a committed reader of poetry. Vernon Scannell's The Apple-Raid is perhaps the most successful book of the four "for young people"—partly because it is not so self-conscious and partly because it seems more convinced, as its author says, that he who needs no poetry or bread/is really in n devilish bad way.

For leaving the determination of incomes to what is called "tha free working of the market", just makes no sense at all in

Alas, ha was born into the wrong party. The Democrats, for all their working-class hase, would have welcomed him, as they welcomed Franklin D. Roosevelt, the patrician, and John F. Kennedy, the son of a wealthy tycoon. But for the Republicans, the party of wealth and privilege, Mr Rockefeller was too liberal.

He really helieves that the Preamble to the Constitution means all that it says—that the people of the United States ordained and established the Constitution to establish justice and promote the general welfare as well as provide for the common defence. Not thet he was unmindful of national security. He is still regarded as a hard-liver in defence and foreign affairs, but for many Republicans he was a traitor ro the monetarist's solution of sitting on the mooey supply would merely accentuate the Injustice, and continue the Inflation against the hackground of a total stagnant economy.

No. difficult as it is, we must recognize that while the free market is the Ideal solution, it cannot operate in the face of modern unlon monopolies. Recent experience does not lead one to hope that the power of these monopolies can He just might have made it in 1964, although the tide of right-wing extremism was running strong. His divorce and remarriage—to the mother of another man's children, as his critics dramatically exclaimed -killed his chances. There-after, he could never quita uck up sufficient courage run again, perhaps hecause he cared too much for his wife.

Known as Happy, the second Mrs Rockefeller certainly mede their marriage a happy one. Thereafter Mr Rockefeller's amhitions were more easily controlled. His resignation from the Governorship of New York, after en unprecedented 15 years of service in Alhany, was seen to be the preliminary to yet another try for the White House, but bearing in mind his years, he is in his mid-sixties, it was probably only a willingness to serve in bis country's bour

Yet another little social harrier has heen trodden underfoot in the stampede from Watergate. Not that many Americans will have noticed. The majority are almost cer-tainly relieved thet President Ford has nomineted such a talented and experienced man to an appointment generally recognized to be "only a heart heat from the Presidency".

His experience is heyond question. He served under President Franklin Roosevelt as importance that both figures should be clearly understood—

The film, as he recalls. had the provocative title Hurlements en faveur de Sade, and was advertised as baving caused a rior in Paris. The eager audience found they had paid to watch a blank screen, sometimes black, sometimes whire, for about 30 minutes, to the accompaniment of an unintelligible sound track made up of random readings from newspapers. "I suppose it was one of the first happenings", says Rowe.

As in Paris, the film caused something of a riot. On this occasion, it arose from the London audience's efforts to ger their money back. Dorothy Moorland, who was director of the ICA at the time, says the film originated with Dada-ists in Paris. "We put up notices saying that people bought tickets at their own risk, hut thera were violent argu-ments. Otherwise, they argued, there would he a danger of landlords moving in to roh their tenants of protec-

What the campaigners feared has in fact happened, and hap pened to one of their leeding members. Philip Pearson, who was formerly a researchar with Shelter and wrote the organization's pamphlet A New Denl for Furnished Tenants, erguing the case for security all round, has heen under notice to quir since April. His landlord has recently moved from an address in Cheyne Walk to take a modesi single room in the rather tetty house in Vicarage Grove, Camherwell, where Pearson and other tenants live.

Because the landlord was able to make the move hefore the commencement date of tha new Act, which was August 14,

Pearson and his neighbours have lost the security that they would have enjoyed had he stayed in Chelses.

Even the Department of the Environment got it wrong. When I first checked with them. I was told that Pearson was still profected hecause the landlord had to have lived in the house since the commencement of the tenancy. In fact that provision only applies to tenancies created since August 14.

A grandson of the founder of the Rockefeller fortune, he did his apprenticeship in the family bank and served under three presidents in a variety of capacities. He was also an outstanding Governor of New York for 15 years. He is an internationalist, and the former patron of Dr Henry Kissinger, Mr. Rockefeller has long bad presidential ambitions, and he was known to be at the top of Mr Ford's short-list of vicepresidential possibles.

His nomination is neverthcless a double surprise. Although he was always regarded as a hardliner in international affairs, Mr Rockefeller is a liberal in domestic affairs and heartily disliked by the right wing of the Republican party. He was brutally savaged during the 1964 Republican National Convention by the Goldwater forces. With this hackground in mind, mony commentators believed that President Ford would choose a lequate presidents. Mr neutral candidate for the viceand Mr Johnson were presidential nomination such as

The need for such coordination strongly supports the general principles underlying at least one of the suggestions contained in the Government's proposals for the future of the ports, published yesterday; that there should be a new National Ports Authority, which would exercise certain vital controlling functions from the centre but which would leave the day to day questions of service and pricing to individual ports. It is right that this body should have functions distinct from the actual ownership and running of the country's ports, otherwise a choice would have to he made hetween two unacceptable alternatives. There are a number of issues raised by the document, however which cannot command the same support as this principle. The first is that no reason is given, and no convincing reason exists. for enforcing the out-of-date rules of the National Dock Labour Board scheme on ports which are not already burdened with it. This is pure union dogma. Nor is there any reason to suppose that taking over those few ports which are privately owned would make any contribution to increased efficiency. Most of the necessary co-ordination of their investment schemes could probably be achieved through the National

Ports Authority.
The paper is for consultation and gives little detail about particular undertakings. But the Government would not he justified in taking all the privately owned ports into public ownership unless it can give convincing assurances that the initiative which has allowed some of the private ports to grow rapidly in the past few years would not thereby be killed. So far it has been unable to do so.

bishops

From the Bishop of Southwark Sir, Bishop Hanson (article, August 17) is of the opinion that the Church of England should choose its own bisbops. Judging by the vote in the Genaral Synod last July it would seem that many churchmen agree with him. I am among them. However, I could bave wished that Dr. Hanson bad elaborated on his contention that it is feasible to work out a new method based on the collegiate system of choice whereby a body of laity and clergy that manifestly did represent the Church pre-sented the Prime Minister with a list of two or three names to choose

Having been a member of Convo-cation, of the Church Assembly, of the Geoeral Synod and the Bridsh Council of Churches I doubt whether they adequately represent the gene-rolity of churchmen. On the contrary l should have thought that the majority come from that section of the nation which is sometimes des-cribed as "white collared". In saying this I am not criticizing, still less attackine, these hodies upon the nature of their composition, as I appreciate the bistorical and sociological reasons for it; but I am suggesting that we have a long way to go before the representatives of our ecclesiastical bodies show evidence of a "social mix" as obviously, for instance, do the members of the Labour Party Conference.

This limitation does not imply that we should not make a start along the lines suggested by Bishop Han-son, but I think we should do so with our eyes wide open and with the determination in achieve a more satisfactory method of representa-don in all our Church governing bodies. If the Bisbop can help us in this matter I am sure that many will gratefully beed bis counsel. There is one point in his article which may not command so much support. He suggests that the Col-Prime Minister with a list of two or three names to choose from. If I understood the spirit of the York Synod aright it was considered that it was not merely desirable but essential that the Church should make the choice, ic, put the names of the candidates in order and that the Prime Minister should approach the man at the head of the list with the possibility of submitting his name to the Sovereign. I can see no constitutional difficulty in this method as it already applies in the case of Opposition honours. Tha Minister but the actual choice is made by somebody else.

The repeal was largely meaningless because, in the absence of any alternative definition, the meaning of "charity" is still to be found in case law whose replaced like in the 1501 personals like in the 1501 personals. ranionale lies in the 1601 preamble.
Even in the Incorporated Council

Law Reporting case quoted Mr Hill, Lord Justice Russell, in maiotaining that Lord MacNaghten's catch-all fourth category of charitable purposes ("other purposes beneficial to the community") should be held to be "prima facie charitable in law", nevertheless said that the courts "bave left open a line of retrear based on the equity of the Statute" of 1601 wherehy purposes could be excluded from charitable status if they "could not have been within the contemplation of the Statute even if the then legislators had been endowed with the tances of later centuries.".

Unfortunately, it seems that Queen Elizabeth I's Parliament could foresee the Mahara Ji's Divine Light Mission, the Vegan Society, the British Institute of Embalmers Memorial Trust and the Brinsh Goat Society but that the Nanooal Council for Civil Liberties, the Campaign against Racial Discrimination, the United Nations Association and the Disablement Income Group were beyond even their bypermetropic

Moreover, the administration of the law is in the hands not of the courts but of civil servants-the Charity Commissioners and (until recently) the Department of Education and Science. The latter ruled in striking off the Humanist Trust, that "moral and social development of the community" was not charitable, while the Charity Commissioners have unrepentedly reprinted in their latest Report their remarkable advice of 1969 against " the increasing desire of voluntary organiza-'involvement' tions for causes with which their work is connected", which might lead them inm the error of "drawing attention as forcibly as possible to the needs which they think are not being

These interpretations of the meaning of "public service" (a phrase, incidentally, quite new, I helieve, to the discussion of charity lawl may seem logical and right to Mr Hill. but I venture to suggest that there are those who will disagree. Yours faithfully,

Method of choosing Press campaign against Mr Nixon

From Mr John Sparrow Sir, From time to time the Americao people assassinate their President; never until today has the thing been done in slow motion before the eyes of the whole world.

An assassioation may be justified or unjustified, it may be a noble or an ignoble deed, and its character bears no necessary relation to character of the victim. Even if Mr Nixon has been guilty of the gravest crimes and misdemeanours, hat does not alter-nor, surely can ir justify—the character of the cam-paign that has been conducted against him in the press—a cam-paign that has by now made it difficult if not impossible for him to receive a fair trial, at any rate at the har of public opioion, on any of the numerous charges laid to his

The infection has spread across the Atlantic. The other day, an English Professor of Politics glibly Eoglish Protessor of rounce guoty asserted to the TLS: "There has been a series of interlocking crimes from ITT to Watergate"; and went on to quote approvingly the suggestion of "links with the deaths of Martin Luther King and John Cannedy himself".

John Kennedy himself ".

In the United States, there seems to be no limit to the permitted range of vilification and innuendo. Some months ago the President, conversion with an elderly man ar a public function, tapped him playfully, on the cheek. Humour, perhaps, is not Mr Nixon's forte, and the jocular gesture was no doubt an awkward one. However that may be, the opportunity was too good for his enemies to miss, and several oewspapers in America mld their readers, with appropriate beadlines that the President lost his temper him in the face. A trivial misrepre-sentation, no doubt; but every limle helps. Let me offer a more serious example of the way the campaign against Mr Nixon has been conducted. Two significant documents have recently been published in the United States: The White House Transcripts, a taped record of the President's colloquies with his advisers, and All the President's Men, in which two reporters recount, from inside the office of the most bonoured and honourable of American newspapers, bow The Washington Post's investigation of "Water-gate" was carried out. It is diffi-cult in say which book leaves in the mouth the nasher taste.

Some may find the more nauseating the journalists' description of bow they went about their work of harrassing officials, private persons, witnesses, and jurors. To use their own words, "They bad use their own words, "They bad dodged, evaded, misrepresented, suggested and infimidated, even if they had not lied outright. . . They

they had not lied outright... They bad chosen expediency over principle and, caught in the act, their role had been covered up".

The act they were caught in was trying m get information out of members of the grand jury; they were "covered up" by the judicial clemency of Judge Sirica. "Soon to be filmed", says the legend on the cover of their book—"Soon to be filmed", at a time when the issues were still sub judice, both in the legal and in the larger sense! legal and in the larger sense! Personal, professional, and politi-cal vendettas may have sharpened and poisoned the knives of some of the assassins, but that is a negligible part of the story. What is remarkable is the way in which a mass of highminded and responsible people seeto to have lent themselves to the process. How could they violate so grossly the very standards of decency and fair dealing that they quite siocerely, no doubt-pro-fessed to uphold and, indeed, were claiming to viodicate? For the explanation one would have to turn, no doubt, to the psychologists; the rage of the American people against the man in the White House was the rage of Caliban seeing his own face in the glass.

What good will come of the exposure? Will it "clean up" political and public life in the United States? One hopes so; but the bope is a slender one, since the lessoo of the affair seems to be that, if you the arrain seems to be that, if you are convinced of your own righteousness, virtually oo bolds are barred: the ordinary rules of justice and decency simply don't apply. And that, after all, was perhaps the attitude that proved fatal to the President bimself. Yours faithfully, JOHN SPARROW,

Collapse of Court Line From Mr Brian Sedgemore, Labour

MP for Luton West Sir, I deeply regret that your front page story on the Court Line col-lapse (August 17) could only bave given your readers the impression that Ivor Clemitson (the MP for Luton East) and I were critical of the Government's role in the affair. Nothing could be further from the Ever since Tony Benn announced his proposal to bring Court shipping into public ownership Ivor Clemitson and I have been in close and regular contact with the Government over the aviation and leisure sides. Representatives of both BALPA and the ASTMS were put immediately in the picture hy Ministers. Both unions drew up coostructive proposals on the future of the company. Both made severe but unpublicized criticism of management policies, nearly all of which have turned out to be justified. Throughout Ministers acted in good faith and indeed literally days before the rompany ceased trading were discussing with me some of the ideas put forward on worker participation. The company for its part bas been less than forthright both to the Government and to its staff over financial and other matters. Right up to the end they were running away from reality over their financial situation. So far as the staff is concerned, was at the airport from 9.00 pm to 2.30 am on the night disaster struck and witnessed for myself the carenot to say contemptuous, ide displayed towards attitude employees. It is a small hut perbaps significant point that when I inquired if the managing director of Court Line Aviation Mr Posey was at the airport I was assured he was

Unfortunately for the company a journalist recognized him and even-tually he was flushed out and expressed his great and no doubt genuine concern for the staff. The same day it was Ivor Clemitson and I. not the management, who were the ones to explain the causes of the collapse and give advice on how to go about claiming redundancy payments and find fresh jobs.

Anyone who bas followed the situation closely over the past year roust surely realize that Court Line's insolvency was not caused by inflation, the three day week, oil prices, Cyprus, rumours in the City, Acts of God or any of the other excuses now being trotted out. The insolvency came about through the calculated and disastrous policies of the management. In these circumstances I find it a little surprising that the crash of this private enterprise firm should bave been billed by much of the press as a blow for public ownersbip and a triumph for Mr Micbael Heselnine, Aims of Industry and the Conservetive Party. Everything that has happened over Court Lice strengthens the case for Labour's industrial policies. Tony Beon certainly bas my support for all his policies. Yours faithfully.

BRIAN SEDGEMORE, House of Commons

Sir, In your leader of August 17 about the Court Line collapse you assert, with partisan bias, that the Government's moral if oot legal responsibility for this unhappy affair does seem considerable. The argument you deploy to sustain this position seems oddly inconsistent with your editorial policy on state involvement in industry.

You appear to be saying, in your leader, that the Government's involvement with Court Lice made an unsound business seem sound to baokers and the general public. whereas you have generally conten-ded that state involvement makes sound businesses unsound, and undermines business confidence. You are too lenient to the manage ment of Court Line to say that its takeover of Clarksons and Horizon Holidays seems to bave been an enlightened move to preserve the reputation of the travel iodustry. The acquisitions were made to preserve its own airline interests and were judged to he business ventures which were going to yield profits That they turned out to be, in your words, financial suicide bad nothing are an indictment of management. The furore that you and other papers bave whipped up over Court Line's affairs reminds me of the footnote in the vicar's written version of bis Sunday sermon—Argument weak, sbout like hell!

No doubt you bope to focus the oatural resentment of creditors, employees, and bolidaymakers unfairly on the Government, instead of on Court Line's management. where it should properly be, and so reap an electoral dividend from a failure of private enterprise. Yours faithfully, DAVID DIXON

Conflict in Cyprus From Mr Giles Watson

Sir, While Mr Stewart's letter of August 13 on life in Cyprus under Makarios was illuminating. I fear be is mistaken in claiming that Greek Cypriots refer to their main-land cousins as "squids". The "kalamari", a squid, is gastronomi-cally speaking at least, a popular part of Greek life.

"Kalamaradbes", on the other hand, are indigenous to areas of the globe far removed from the Mediterranean, and are frequently beld responsible for those acts of government that transcend mortal comprehension. The word, means literally "pen-pushers", and colloquially, "bureaucrats". Sincerely, GILES WATSON.

From Mr David Pike

Sir, Your correspondent, Mr W. M. T. Magan, 17imes, Augusta 19), is mistaken. The secret treaty hetween Disraeli and the Turks signed on June 4, 1878, five days before the opening of the Congress of Berlin.

"Art. 1.—If Batoum. Ardahan, Kars, no any of them shall be re-tained by Russia and if any attempt shall be made at any further time by Russia to take possession of any further territories of his Imperial Majesty the Sultan in Asia, as fixed by the definitive Treaty of Peace, England engages to join His Imperial Majesty the Sultan in defending them by force of Arms.

Civil Assistance in an emergency

From Lieut-Colonel Robert Butler Sir, So much bas been written by people with no inside knowledge about Sir Walter Walker's intentions and the aim of the Civil Assistance organization be has founded that I ask the opportunity to set down, as one who has this koonledge, the Drecise facts.

Sir Walter Walker and his closest associates believe that the sierila actions of successive Governments, both Conservative and Labour, have laid this country more open to eventual domionion by a foreign power than it has been for 908 years. We believe that there will be a very real danger of a breakdown of law and order and of the essential public services if events which have already occurred early this year were to re-occur with greater intensity and for a longer period. Our heliefs are shared by virtually all the thousands of well-informed and level-headed citizens of every walk of life who have written to offer their services to support the Government in office, should it ask for assistance in keeping comtounications open, in manning sufficient transport to ensure adequate food distribution; in operating sewage pumps and keeping the wheels of iodustry turning. We helieve that an administration that has oot secretly decided to capitulate quietly and over a period to the communists will welcome the knowledge that such numerous. powerful and technically skilled support is available to run essential services including the most sophisricated power stations. Following Mr Scanlon's recent statement it would indeed be extremely sinister for a Government which receives such loyal and mesningful support to say it did not welcome it. My own view is that any Government which allowed a breakdown of the services upon which civilized life depends, whilst knowing that it has the means to prevent it, would be virtually issuing an open invita-tion to autocratic intervention from right or left extremism. Since no lover of this country wishes such a circumstance to be forced upon it, Sir Walter Walker's Civil Assistance organization is straining all its energies and resources to provide any Government in office with a means to counter by peaceful means all forms of breakdown.

We are our preparing for a military takeover, but doing everything in our power to ensure that this will oever take place. R. BUTLER.

Loog Orchard, Hamoshire, August 20.

Ulster politicians

From Dr D. L. Armstrong Sir, A main factor which has contributed to the growth in power of para military organizations in Ulster has been the denigration of Ulster polincians. The press, the media and Eoglish polincians have amused themselves and pandered to the lefr wing of their parties by branding Ulster politicians and particularly Ulster Uniooist politicians as extremists, fanancs, bigots, or simply sinister and evil men. The Ulster Unionist politicians are no worse and no better than the other inhabitants of Westminster. They have all been elected by the people on the same basis and uoder the same United Kingdom laws and coovertions. They are family men with the same vices and virtues as other men. They have priociples, which in these days of "double think" is a disadvantage, but for the leader of a party which includes Mr Wedgwood Benn and Mr Scanlon to brand Mr West and his colleagues as extremists is, to say the least, ironical. More serious, however, is the capital made by the Provisional IRA and other terrorist groups out of these unjustified smears. The terrorists are enabled to claim that political representatives are treated with contempt, that the only language Westminster understands is the rattle of the submachine gun and the splintering of human flesh when the bombs explode. Mr Heath (and Mr Wilson for that matter! should be making overtures to Mr Wes! and bis colleagues. They should be holstering his position and not weakening it for if any political solution is to be found Mr West and bis colleagues have the vital role to play. They are the elected representatives of the majority in Northern Ireland, a fact which no volume of abuse can alter.

On the question of Ulster's representation at Westminster, there is no need for any deal. There is a clear cut case recognized by "Kilbrandon" for an increase in the number of Northern Ireland seats. The number of seats required to put Northern Ireland on a par with Scotland and Wales is a marter for a commission to resolve but an increase of at least 10 seats would be justified. The assertion by certain leading polincians that these additional seats would all be taken by Unionists is a confession of the bankruptcy of Government policy and is in any event an irrelevant argument. The essence of parliamentary democracy is that the number of MPs should be commensurate with the number of people they are representing and that the people should be free to vote for the candidate of their choice without threats or attacks no their integrity. Yours faithfully.

LSO having big fight to stretch out funds

By a Staff Reporter In spite of having a turnover of £850,000, the highest of all tha country's orchestras, the London Symphony is having a great struggle to make ends meet, Mr. Stephen Reiss, the orchestra's administramr, said at a press conference yesterday to amounce the of the public, whose needs and aspirations were perhaps not being fully realized.

In a review of the forthcoming season, Mr André Previn, the principal conductor, said the 1974-75 season would begin with e tour of the United States, including a visit as the first British orchestra m the Hollywood Bowl, and end with a return visit to the Salzburg Festival.

The orthestra would also undertaka a 16 concert tour of Japan next year, in a private promotion which would cost £110,000 and be made entirely without Arts Conncil belp or private subsidy. A tour of Eastern Europe, backed by £40,000 from Rank Xerox, would be undertaken in 1977, covering Romania, Hungary and Czechoslovakia, and with André Prévin and Leonard Bernstein, also booked for Salzburg and Edinburgh next year, as conductors.

Mr Previn also aunounced the esuits and future engagements. He said the orchestra de-pended on private support: a mere 13 per cent was contributed from public funds compared with half paid in arts organizations

Romania's cultural revolution given teeth

By Gahriel Ronay

Amid resonuding Sovietblock appeals for the spirit of détente in Europe, Romania's own hrand of "cultural revolu-tion" and ideological ortho-doxy is growing apace.

President Ceausescu's proclamation of his ideological theses launched Romania's cultural revolution in July, 1971. Now, three years later, the Council for Socialist Culture and Education—the country's cultural watchdog—has decreed that every cultural activity throughout the country must be subordinated to, or concerned with, two major events in tha party's calendar.

These are the thirtieth anni-versary this month of the overthrow of General Antonescu's fascist dictatorship and the eleventh congress in November of the Communist Romania's sophisticated and cosmopolitan writers have been urged to join the "front of those who write useful litera-rure". At the same time, they have been reminded by Presi-dent Ceausescu, and various cultural watchdogs, that "the author is free to write what he wants, and we are free to pub-lisb what we think is good and of service to our socialist cul-Personal professorables have been swarded to W. socialist function of literature leaves little doubt that those who do not toe the party line will never get into print since publishing is the monopoly of the Communist Party.

Mr Virgil Teodorescu, editor of the official organ of the writers' union, bas gone on re-cord as saying that "in our society literature and art can-not be considered a personal and independent affair, thet there must, and does, exist a compact literary and artistic front dictated by the evolution and the goals of this society.".

Editors, directors and readers of publishing houses bave been warned by Mr Ion Dodu Balan, vice-chairman of the Council for Socialist Culture and Art, that ideolog-ical criteria must take precedence over aesthetic ones.

In its "new course", "must be based on ever more rigorous selection. What we must be "directly and openly committed", the council to a minimum to ruled. to enhance the personal responsibility of the publisher and of those who distribute books."

Meanwhile, Romania's cultural beritage is, once more, being critically reassessed to weed out works that do not fit in with the aim of the "cul-tural mobilization" of the masses.

These are the official nouncements. Yet through conversations with Romanian intellectuals one gains the lmpression that there is a considerable gap hetween the official edicts and what is actually heing put into practice. The wave of orthodoxy appears to have washed over most people without much effect.

The sudden publicity given last winter to the cultural revolution after close on two years of a low-profile approach, indicates a reassessmeet of the country's development prospects.

The short-term policies of ideological helt-tightening, lannched in the wake of a Soviet invasion scare and im-mediately after Mr Ceausescu's Peking visit in the summer of 1971, are now being presented as part of an overall design masterminded by the President bimself.

Indeed, the basic tenets of the "July theses" and their application to every single aspect of the country's life are now presented as Mr Ceau-sescu's very own contribution to "the creative development of Marxism-Leninism" in London is a lonely, friendless place for the homeless and for many of the old people who have been left behind in dismal rooms. Some are just bewildered by life today, some are problem people. All of them need friendship even more than material aid-though plenty need a simple square meal.

(The Friendship is free)

The Hoxton Centre, with aid from Help the Aged, provides both. Friendship from hardworking young people like 'Kipper' who does a round among down and outs till the small hours; and Judith who gives old Mrs. White almost the only visits she gets. "Loneliness" says Judith, "can do terrible things to old people. We hope to show her that somebody cares."

Their devoted, realistic help enables us to provide a nourishing meal for 71p (yes, evan in 1974), holidays at exceptionally low cost, and soon a workroom where they can make friends and a little money to eke out their pensions.

These young workers are giving their lives to helping those in great need. We need to hack them with the essential funds they need. Please send your generous gift quickly to:

Brazil's lawyers call for divorce reform

From a Special Correspondent
Rio de Janeiro, Aug 19
The Brazilian Bar Association has called for the legalization of divorce as a basic

Roman Catholic country along with a list of other necessary reforms.

The divorce issue stirred heated controversy at the Bar Association's netional conference on "The Lawyer and Human Rights" which closed here this weekend.

There were divergences over other themes considered "tou political". A demand for amnesty for all political prisoners was postponed until the next conference [it is estimated that more than 1,000 political prisoners are being polifical prisoners are being beld in Brazilian jails].

The lawyers approved monons calling for the following: abolition of the death penalty; freedom of press, associations and labour unions; the right to autonomous political parties; the repeal of dis-criminatory legislation giving arbitrary powers to the President; and an end to violations of human rights under the pre-text of national security.—New York Times News Service.

Palaeobotany: Progress of a desert

Plant remains preserved in a Nevada cave for 40,000 years have provided a team of American scientists with clues to the changing pattern of vegetation and climate in what is now the Mohave desert. According to Dr John Trongiston of the Caraegie Institute at Stanford, California, changes in the metabolism of the plants provide unique physiological cal corroboratioo for geological evidence of climatic changes hetween 30,000 and 40,000 years ago which transformed a jumiper forest into a desert.

Or Trooghton also suggests that the fact that Atriplex, the place of hot dry areas, was present even in small amounts in the 40,000 year sample indicates that conditions must already have been getting drier. That evidence from the plant remains complements the geographical evidence already available on the formation of the desert.

Deductions from this amount would be made to cover depre-ciation, amortization and wear of equipment, social henefits of the industry's 22,000 workers, and amounts owed by oil companies to the government, or public entities.

Tentative netionalization dates were not mentioned in the draft. Payment of compensation could be deferred for up to 10 years, or could be made in government bonds under the proposal.

Wage/price watchdog panel for US on way

From Frank Vogl Washington, Aug 20 President Ford's first legisletive request to the Congress has mer with a swift and affirmative response. This ensures that e special monitoring board to watch prices and wages developments will be established by early September.

The Congress, in line with the President's request, bas voted to establish a Cnuncil on Wages and Prices.

Although the legislation got yery strong support in both Hnuses of the Congress, there are many members who doubt a wages and prices task force that cannot impose any form of controls will have much offect.

Senator Stevenson reflacted the scepticism, in the debate on the Bill tn establish the council, in remarking: "It (the council) has no teeth: indeed, it has no jaw. It bas no stick, or even a carrot. It is a cipber." But the conditions under which the council bas been established do give this new body a great deal more power then Schator Stevenson has been willing to admit.

In fact, the Bill was strongly opposed by Senator Buckley and a few others because of fcars that it would be a first step towards full controls. Senator Buckley argued that it would "be an instrument of coercion and intimidation".

He said: "It amounts to nothing more than a de facto form of wage and price con-trol, cmploying extra-legal methods to be effective."

The Bill, which is bound to be signed shortly by the Presideot, gives him the power to appoint an eight-men permanent cost-of-living council end to appoint four additional special advisers to the council.

The council will have an administrative budget for the next 12 months of $1m (about $431,000). It will be charged with reviewing and analysing the state of industrial capacity and demand and supply condi-tions, to ascertain the possibi-lities of price restraint.

Further, it is to work to improve the structure of collec-rive bargaining so as to bring about greater prices and wages restraint. The council will have the power to hold public hearings to scrutinize inflationary prob-lems in all sectors of the economy. Most importantly, it will have the priwer to monitor all aspects of the economy by "acquiring as appropriate, re-ports on wages, costs, producti-vity, prices, sales, profits, im-ports and exports".

Beyond these powers the council will also he able to review all government programmes and the activities of government departments ageocies, to assess how they add to inflation; and it is charged with striving to help produce greater productivity in government and private enter-

The opposition to controls themselves is now very great, with many members of the Congress and economists main taining that the existence of controls do above all produce supply shortages, as well as in-equities in wage earnings, and that these are the two prime causes of the present inflation.

A number of prominem secators, including Mr Stevenson, Mr Muskie, Mr Javits and Mr Proxmire, all suggested amendments to the Bill creating the council which would primarily give it the power to defer increases in wages and prices up to a maximum of 90 days.

This was hotly opposed by most senators, who saw such a power as heing fully equivalent to the controls they so much

Llanwern trouble Booker group's forces BSC to divert supplies

The British Steel Corporation is planning to switch supplies of finished steel from its strike-hit Llanwern works in Wales for cold rolling at other BSC plants, a spokesman said last night.

The strike, hy 550 workers, bas not affected steel production, but has halted output of cold rolled steel, used mainly hy the car iodustry. By sending steel for processing at other works BSC is boping that customers will not suffer any drop in supplies.

A dispute over honus paymants led to the stoppage at Lianwern, and the corporation said that below normal bonuses had been experienced by all departments since the start of the year because of the energy crisis and a massive reconstruc tion operation to uprate the works. The atrikers meet on Friday.

Relying on

volume growth F. J. Wallis's figures for the six months to Juoe 29 give little guidance on what the profit picture will look like by the end of 1974. While its share price has come back with the stock market, a halving to 40p ioside a year bas also been asking whether the fundamentals upon which Wallis's superb growth record has been built were oow completely different. What we do know is that in the opening weeks of 1974 trading was some 24 per cent adead, while after six mooths turnover ruos out 32 per cent higher hut profit has barely improved. Given that Wallis enjoyed a greater sales area opeoed by the eod of June, the improvement in turoover helped by higher prices is hardly surprising, even though its customers presumably had less to socod during the three-day week. Where Wallis has deeply.

If, then, Wallis is to cominue operating in the kind of climate where margins are going to be pared to the booe, it is going to have to rely more than ever oo volume growth to keep profits moving ahead, and on this front it is opening another seven supermarkets during the second six mouths. That and Wallis's forecast of a maximum locrease in its dividend this year, pointing to a yield of 7.3 per cent, may indicate coofidence about the final profit outcome. But then an historic p/e ratio of 6.7 is certainly looking for some growth from Wallis, and any failure to deliver would he punished. Interim: 1974 (1973) Capitalization £6.47m Sales £19.7m (£14.9m)

AMC henefited both fruin active metal markets, thanks to fust-ouving prices and still high demand, and from good results from the United States steel fahricating activities. Alu-minium smelting in Bahrain was guud-production of 120,000 tonnes of metal autoully from a smulter sitting on tup of the world's higgest oil/gas fields tas its points—while demand for the metal in the United Kingdom and Europe has held up well against timber and steel.

At CTS, smelter charges have At CTS, smelter charges have heen put on to a realistic basis at last, with a new hase being established. A somewhat onexpected honus is that the provision for 17.68m in the 1972 accounts arising from the liquidation of Williams Harvey now looks as though it will be largely recovered over the next couple of years or so. years or so. At 170p, CTS is selling at less

That the merger will eventually take place is in little doubt, but the difficulty lies in both the timing and the lies in both the timing and the terms. Clayton Dewandre Defying the pessimists

It is far from clear-to the stock market at least—how comindustry can go on maintaining such a bold front. Car production was down by 101 per cent in the first half of this year and commercial vehicle production helped by higher prices is hardly surprising, even though its customers presumably had less to soeod during the threeday week. Where Wallis has been hit is in the vital area of margins, where the enforced cut lo retailers' gross margios under the counter-ioflatioo regulations has clearly hitten and commercial vehicle industry and now Clavton Dewandre having shrugged off the three-day week with a 13 per cent profit rise, is telliog the same story.

That was far enough ahead of market expectations to see the shares 5p higher at 43p and to send analysts scurrying to revise their earlier estimates of a sharp downturn for the full year into a useful upturn of perhaps E250.000 or more. Assuming E2.5m. the shares are thus selling oo a prospective p/e of around 4.

Claytoo has obviously been performing well overseas. With the Indian associate's profits almost doubled at £241,000. But the surprise factor has been the relative strength of domestic demand. Goods vehicle registra-tions in the United Kingdom are, it is true, well down, bot rhe maoufacturers' production for the export market rose by 15 per cent in the second

European markets have held up much better than the United Kiugdom so far, and although Clayton is not a direct exporter to most of Europe, the export prospects for its customers cur-rently look bright enough to add more interest to the shares than has recently seemed justifiable. Why the Bank of England is asking more questions

coping with the shurt-term prob-lem of manning rescue opera-tions since the collapse of London & Coomy Secorities last November, it has already recog-nized the longer-term needs of is to help ensure that the husi-ness of banking is being conducted prudently.

Discount Office with the Chica Cashier's Department and giving Mr George Blonden overall responsibility for the super-vision of the banking system. The facts and figures pub-lished in the Baok's monthly hanking statistics, and coosolidated and amplified in its Quarterly Bulletin, almost all fall into the first and second of fall into the first and second of these three categories. They are gathered together by the Bank's Economic lotelligence Department and hare traditionally provided the factual lasis on which the Chief Cashier's Department sets out to control the generation of credit to the falls in the present reporting system. Broadly speaking, the Bank currently requires banking statistics for three different purposes. The first is to allow connomy. It only needs a casual glance through the statistical section of the Bullcuin to show how comprehensive this material now is. But a slightly longer look shows how relatively tional changes within the Bank, the responsibility for ensuring that banks were soundly run lay with the Discount Office, as an adjunct to its traditional function of supervising the discount market and rediscounting hills. A staff of a Couple of dozen or so bad the impossible task of keeping a weather eye on some 150 banks operating in Britain -and even that figure excludes the 150 or so foreign bank branches with which they were also concerned. Ioeritably, they had to rely beavily on annual reports supplemented on an adhoc basis with the evidence of informal contacts.

The new information which the Bank is now seeking high-lights the caps in its present knowledge. It knows very little about the maturity pattero of the banks' sterling deposits and business. It knows very little sceking relates to the dealings about the amounts that have of banks with associated combeen set aside for bad or doubt-panies. One of the more disful debts or investments. Con-tiogent liabilities which do not show up on a balance sbeet— such as standby facilities—are also an area of massive official

Without such information, it is impossible to tell whether a bank is strong or week. A bank can have a superficially "strong" balance sheet, with a high ratio of capital and reserves to deposits, and still be "weak" if it is financing longterm loans, inadequately secured loans or equity investments on the back of volatile, short-term money market deposits.

It follows that the use to which the new information is put in far more important than the actual questions that the Bank chooses to ask. At the moment, it seems, there is little likelihood that it will be used as the basis for a dirigiste structure of formal banking control ratios; it is more likely that Mr Blunden and his team will continue to rely on the will continue to rely on the essentially informal touch—winks, nods and all—that typified the operations of the Discourt Office in the past. But there can be no doubting that the Bank's advice will be provided more forcefully.

The exclusion of branches of foreign banks from the reporting exercise is significant. The accounts of a branch, of course, make little sense io the absence of the accounts of the whole bank. But their exclusion also underlines the Bank's view that the supervisory responsibility for foreign banks' London branches must rest with the regulatory authority in the country of origin. Whatever international agreements may or may not be imminent on the control of the Eurocurrency markets vesterday's move has control of the Eurocurrency

This is a legitimate reflection of thair special position in the hanking system but it does not mark an official decision to allow them to go their own sweet way. For they will also be taking part in talks with the Bank of England with a view to reaching a measure of agreement on appropriate banking ratios.

It is worth repeating that ratios and controls appropriate to one type of hank may be nonsensical if applied to another. For that reason, it is right that the Bank of England should gear its reporting requirements and eventual expectations to the circumstances of the institutions with which it is dealing A certain amount of is dealing. A certain amount of standardization is essential, especially withto subsections of the hanking industry. But rigid uniformity is pointless.

How the development of banking cootrols evolves from now on remains to he seen. Stricter controls are acknow-ledged to be essential and they will probably involve drawing some fairly rigid lines between different types of banking institution. Alan Hamilton examines the future of Britain's docks under Mr Mulley's plans

Labour's new keynote for the ports is reorganization

proposals on of the ports Mr Mulley's nationalization yesterday represent the second attempt hy a Labour Government io recent years to take the highly sensitive docks industry ioto full public owoership. Wide-ranging in concept, although vague in detail, they appear to he chosiderahly less controversial than the nationalizatioo plan put forward by Mrs Barbara Costle as Minister of Transport in 1969. Yesterday's announcement must he seen as a further step along the long road to a truly effective supervisory system.

To judge how much help the extra information will be to Mr

Blunden and his team, one must first draw attention to the short-it to paint as accurate a picture as possible of overall developments in the financial system. The second is to make certain that its monetary controls are properly enforced. The third, prisingly, a relatively recent chiective of the Labour Party. The 1964 election manifesto made ou mention of it, and it was only in 1966 that a working party was ser up uoder Ian Mikardo to examine its possihilities. The result of the working party was the White Paper The Reorganization of the Poris which sank without trace upon the change of government in June, 1970.

Mrs Castle proposed to take nto public ownership only the major port authorities, those whose traffic exceeded five million tons per year, although there were attempts to extend State control to all ports dealing in third-party traffic whose annual throughpus exceeded 100,000 trons.

Plans for a National Ports

Authority, being the principal operator of ports and the principal employer of dock labour, had their origins in the Rochdale Committee report of 1962 which called for an overall hody to control policy and central planning. Lord Roch-dale's principal concern was to encourage the modernization of the industry, and his suggestion nf a central body has in fact existed for some time in the shape of the National Ports Council. a centralized but purely advisory organization. One major exception was the
At the time of Mrs Castle's Manchester Ship Canal Com-White Paper the port operators pany, which is an independent fully accepted the need for a centralized body to give unified control over policy and positive central planning; but they did not accept that such a central body, in order to meet such objectives, needed to become the principal operator of port services and facilities.

The National Association of Port Employers said at the time that "the establishment of a virtual monopoly in the provision of port services would not be conducive to efficient man-agement and that there should he cominued scope for the operation of port facilities by strong independent husinesses." Ironically, the principal port authorities which Mrs Castle wished to appropriate were already publicly owned, either by harbour trusts, local authorities, or the British Transport Docks Roard.

company operating the efficient Manchester docks. Mr Mulley's proposals yesterday remove some of the princi-pal objections put up by the port employers in 1969, in that he seems prepared to allow ports to retain a large measure of control of their own affairs, and to allow a fair amount of competition to be maintained between ports. But many of the objections are still the same.

The British Ports Association, whose chief spokesman is Mr Donald Redford, chairman and managing director of Man-chester Ship Canal, is quick to point out that 80 per cent of the nation's overseas trade is even now conducted through ports which in one way or another are publicly owned. Anticipating this argument, Mr Mulley has been careful to talk about "reorganization" rather than "nationalization" of the iodustry.

The port authorities also insist that their industry is now a very different one to what it was io 1969, wheo modernizarion of the natioo's docks was hadly needed. Since then the ports have got rid of casual labour and have invested milions in the casual casual labour and have invested milions in the casual casual labour and have invested milions in the casual cas lions in the construction of container termioals and roll-on-off herths; in short, they claim to have modernized themselves without government interfer-

The industry felt more than a little upset yesterday that Mr Mulley had apparently given no credit for its own efforts to bring itself up to date. Particularly successful private ports like Felixstowe and Manchester appear to have coped perfectly well on their own account, to the extent of taking trade away from publicly-owned port authorities like London.

The conspicuous success of small ports like Felixstowe is, the industry feels, ample proof that this peculiar branch of the national economy works best in

Even the most nationalized of port authorities, the British Transport Docks Board, is no frieod of Mr Mulley Sir Humpbrey Browne, BTDB Humpbrey Browne, BTDB chairman, is a strong believer in a mixed economy, and bas said that he welcomes the competition of the private ports. He is in a position to be of such a mind, as his board shared with the British Steel Corpora-tion the good fortune of being the only profitable nationalized iodustry last year.

For all the protestations of the individual port operators, there still appears to be a great deal of duplication and waste in the iodustry, which not even the National Ports Council, with its atrictly limited powers, can con-trol. Why, for instance, are there two major new container terminals, at Tilbury and Southampton, competing for what is largely the same traffic? And can it he in the hest interests of efficiency to have, in addi-tion to the 80 major ports which are in the National Dock Labour

Scheme, a further 135 dotted around the country?

Part of the answer may lie in the fact that many of the smaller ports are enjoying a boom in business, while that of the two major ports of Loodoo and Liverpool is showing a steady decline.

It is clear, however, that opposition to government convertion.

of it is clear, nowever, that opposition to government control is by on means as strong this time as it was in 1969, largely because ports look like retaining a large measure of their control of their new affairs. owo affairs. Some private port operators even helieve that the enactment of Mr Mulley's proposals would be a good thing, to end the uncertainty

Had it not been for such un-certainty, the port operators claim, they would have invested a great deal more money in the industry and made it considerably more efficient than it is now, instead of having to stand by helplessly and watch millions of tons of European traffic disappear to Rotterdam and Ant-Above all, they feel that the creation of a National Ports Authority is unoeccssary. Most of the powers the Mulley proposals would confer on the Government are already contained in the Harbours Act of 1964 which, among other things, gives the Minister for Transport the power of veto on such schemes as the Port of London Authority's grandiose proposals for Maplin.

Their opposition to reorganization might have been stronger had Mr Mulley's pronouncement not been so vague : some even suspect that the Minister's heart is not in the project. They would like to know whn would form the nucleus of the new National Ports Authority; would it be the British Transport Docks Board, or the National Ports Council, or ao oflux of faceless civil servants from Whitehall?

One other largely unspoken fear of the industry is that to have nne overall authority would mean in effect nne em-ployer for the while industry, and that would mean a much easier task for the Transnort and General Wnrlers Union in nreanizine national dock arrikes. In other circles this fear is dismissed as absurd.

But the Labour Government clearly does not agree with such objections. Quite apart from a alization, it sees a need to inject a far greater degree of efficiency into the industry which can bring the country to its knees more quickly than almost any other.

A 10-year "low" was seen on the Sydney Stock Exchange yesterday following the appointment of a receiver for the Mainline Corporation property and construction group, Mainlioe shares dropped at one stage from 40c to 23c before recovering to 28c at the time of the suspension.

Earlier this year the shares were quoted at $2.60 and had reached well over $7 in 1973. Other property issues fell in sympathy, including the blue thip Lend Lease, down 18c to $1.40, Hooker down 6c to 60c and Jennings 9c off at 8Sc.

Rumours on Mainline had been circulating for the last few weeks, but what brought things in a head was the sale of 200,000 shares booked over-

£4m Essex Water offer

Essex Water Company is comng to the market with an offer for sale by tender of £4m of 10 per cent redeemable preference stock 1979.

By the standards of recent water company issues this one is very large. But the last issue to the market, the £1m offering by York Waterworks Company in May, carried a similar cou-pon and proved to be very popular with investors.

It was nearly four times subacribed and the average tender accepted was £102.75 per cent. It is still being quoted at around that level.

We have continued to dovote attention to building hirm loundotions for the future and this is reflected in the considerable increase in tixed assets. Y ed additional depots near Livergool and lew months, have been grafit-serning from the outset. We have also continued to invest in new plant and alte modernisation.

It is particularly difficult to torecast profits for the current year, given the great uncertainties prevailing. We take heart from our performance so let this legibility and management awareness are at a meet the demands of the future and unless a serious racession supervenes we are confident of yet again improving our profils.

New York, Aug 20,-Wall Street stocks closed higher today in a bouncing session. The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 5.01 to 726.85. It was abead more than ten points after the first half hour of trading, pulled back to a loss of more than a point, rehounded to a six-point gain and then was hestant again toward the close. Gains closed with a lead over declines of 689 to 626. Volume totalled 13.820,000 compared with 11.670.000 on Monday. Analysts called the gain the result of careful portfolio adjustments after severe recent losses. They added there was little in the news background to account for the advance or to generate any strong buying behind it.—AP-DJ.

Operations Accountant

for a pioneering role

South-East Essex - c. £3750 p.a.

This is very much a "grass-roots" appointment for a young, able accountant to head up the finance function of our client, a new and growing unit and part of a large international group manufacturing specialised electronic equipment.

His responsibilities will cover co-ordination and preparation of budgets and other operating forecasts (annual, monthly etc.): interpretation of operating variances.

and advice on recovery programmes; control of reporting information such as labour and materials movements, expenses analysis and so on. There is an established group finance function, but our man will show quickly that he can operete successfully without to much string-pulling from the centre. He will expect to contribute to the management of the business and as a member of the executive team of the Unit he will not be disappointed! He will bring to the job a crisp, analytical approach that will also ensure his later progression elsewhere in the group. Other benefits in the package include help with relocation, tour weaks' holiday and a contributory pension scheme. Salary will not be a bar - within reason! Please write, with comprehensive career details, naming concerns to whom your application should not be torwarded, to:

Gordon F. Vivian (Ref: 255/TM), Managing Director,

Hemingway Recruitment Associates 1/2 Bolt Court, Fleet Street, London EC4A 3HP.
